

GAP - Guide to Access Planning

Phonak GAP Learning Guide

A Resource for Self-Advocacy Activities

For teens & young adults, teachers, hearing healthcare professionals and parents

This interactive learning guide was developed to help teens and young adults with hearing loss to better enable and empower themselves as they make significant life transitions. GAP combines a wide spectrum of practical resource materials produced by a team of audiologists and deaf educators - some who are deaf and hard of hearing themselves.

Since its 2011 release, the GAP Learning Guide has become a valuable resource for teens, professionals, and parents.

GAP is offered by Phonak as a free service and available to use at the following website:
